

Foreword

NOC Accreditation Guide of the Sixth East Asian Games aims to provide services to the NOCs and relevant organizations participating in the Games applying for the Identity and Accreditation Card. The Guide clearly specifies the pre-Games accreditation, work procedure, the establishment of the accreditation facilities, and the access rights of the Identity and Accreditation Card. Targeted at different groups of participants, Tianjin Organizing Committee will produce different versions of Accreditation Guide. The knowledge of the content of the Guide is conducive to the efficient, smooth and orderly accreditation of the Sixth East Asian Games.

The successful stage of an East Asian Games is the common wish of the family of the East Asian Games Federation. We sincerely hope that a stage featuring friendship, communication, harmony and progress will be established through our dedicated services. We also hope that by means of this Accreditation Guide the participating NOCs and relevant organizations will have a full understanding of the accreditation work of the Sixth East Asian Games. We suggest that each NOC and relevant organization carefully read the Guide before the Games. If you have any problems or suggestions, please contact us as soon as possible.

It is noteworthy that all the times in this Guide refer to the Beijing Time. With the progress of the accreditation work, the content and procedure may be subject to slight changes. We will inform you of the possible changes in due time.

Chapter I Overview

Objectives

As the policy guidance document, the Accreditation Guide of the Sixth East Asian Games clearly specifies the important dates, work procedure of the accreditation, categories and validity period of various passes, and the establishment of the accreditation facilities, providing a basic guidance for the organization and management of each NOC participating the Games.

Overview of Accreditation

The accreditation involves registration, producing, distribution and validation of Identity and Accreditation Card of the Sixth East Asian Games. The purpose of the accreditation is to confirm the identity of the registered personnel and their functions during the Sixth East Asian Games, and to guarantee their necessary access right to perform their duties.

The readers of this Accreditation Guide include the registered personnel of each NOC and the staff members of the Organizing Committee. Targeted at different groups of participants, the Organizing Committee will produce different versions of Accreditation Guide to standardize and guide the accreditation of different groups of people.

Chapter II Various Passes

2.1 Categories and Access Rights

According to their usages, the passes of the Sixth East Asian Games can be divided into two categories, Identity and Accreditation Card and Auxiliary Passes.

Identity and Accreditation Card of the Sixth East Asian Games is the official pass during the Games time issued to the registered participants by Tianjin Organizing Committee with the authorization of the East Asian Games Federation. The validated Identity and Accreditation Card guarantees the holders access to the prescribed zones during the Games time.

Auxiliary Passes are issued for special and temporary purposes and provide limited access to special zones during specified period of time.

2.2 Auxiliary Passes

To satisfy the needs of various groups of people, Tianjin Organizing Committee has prepared three kinds of auxiliary passes—Guest Pass, Upgrade Pass, and Temporary Pass.

Guest Pass

Guest Pass is used by the guests (including the registered and unregistered personnel) to enter the non-competition venues, such as the Headquarters Hotels, VIP Hotels, and the hotels for technical officials, athletes and the media, Main Press Center, and other non-competition venues. Tianjin Organizing Committee shall issue Guest Pass to the invited guests.

Upgrade Transferable Pass

Upgrade Transferable Pass, abbreviated as “Upgrade Pass”, expands the services and privileges of the card holder. Upgrade Pass is issued only to the registered delegates, and is valid when used in conjunction with the Identity Accreditation Card (main cards) of the delegate.

Each NOC will be given one Upgrade Pass for every 50 athletes in its delegation. NOC delegations with no more than 50 athletes will be issued one Upgrade Pass. There is no limit on the number of times an Upgrade

Pass may be transferred. The holder of an Upgrade Pass has access to all the competition venues except the access to the prime events.

Temporary Pass

Temporary Pass is issued to all the people (including both the registered and unregistered personnel) in need of temporary access to competition and non-competition venues.

Temporary Pass is only issued to the following personnel:

The registered personnel whose Identity and Accreditation Cards grant no access to the venue or special zone of the venue where she/he must enter to perform her/his duties;

The registered personnel whose Identity and Accreditation Cards having access to the venue or special zone of the venue have been lost, stolen, forgotten, or have not been received yet;

Unregistered personnel who need to enter the venue or special zone of the venue for various reasons.

2.3 Validity Period

The validity period of the Identity and Accreditation Card of the Sixth East Asian Games is from September 30 to October 18, 2013.

The validity period of the Auxiliary Passes is subject to the need of special or temporary access.

Chapter III Identity and Accreditation Card

Printed on Identity and Accreditation Card of the Sixth East Asian Games is the important information of the holder, such as name, position, NOC, and the code for the access right.

Identity and Accreditation Cards of the Sixth East Asian Games are divided into different kinds according to the personnel information. (please refer to Attached Form E for details).

The Accreditation Center of Tianjin Organizing Committee is responsible for the identity accreditation work of the Sixth East Asian Games.

Drawing the experience of the previous East Asian Games, the Accreditation Center is committed to provide efficient and convenient registration service to all the participants of the Sixth East Asia Games
